

Rachel Wald is a pediatric and adult congenital cardiologist with appointments at the Toronto General Hospital, Mount Sinai Hospital and SickKids Hospital in Toronto. She is an Associate Professor of Paediatrics, Medicine, Medical Imaging and Obstetrics/Gynaecology at the University of Toronto. Her clinical interests include adult congenital heart disease, cardiac disease in pregnancy and cardiac imaging (echocardiography and magnetic resonance imaging). Her research interests primarily relate to application of cardiac imaging techniques to pregnant women and to children and adults with congenital heart disease.